Comment Of The Day

THE CHINESE UNIVERSITY

THE news which Mr Crozier, the Director of Education, gave to a press conference on Tuesday about a second university, will be widely welcomed in the Chinese community. For it means that the Colony will now have a university in which Chinese will be the principal medium of instruction.

It will mean, moreover, that education in Hongkong will become very much more independent and self-contained, that Chinese students who feel unable to pursue their studies in English at the existing University, will be able to graduate locally in their own language with a recognised degree.

It is distressing enough to see year after year the large numbers of students who partly through inability to find places in the Hongkong University go to England, Canada, America, Australia, Formosa and Japan. The existence of extremely efficient post-secondary schools has made little difference to this annual exodus but with a university such as they will become a very much more attractive prospect.

A Delay

FOR years now local educationalists have been wrestling with the problem of these schools. The chief concern has been to work them into the existing educational structure of the Colony without destroying their identity or character. And it looks as if a solution is now in sight satisfactory to all concerned.

It is naturally disappointing that there is no likelihood of setting up a commission to examine the standards of the post-secondary colleges before two or three years. Now that solution is in the offing, those sponsoring their advancement will want the new university to come into being as quickly as possible.

Government has promised financial aid to help the colleges achieve the higher standards necessary to qualify for the new status and it is to be hoped that the University will also give them every assistance. Mr Crozier is right to emphasise that once even one of the colleges achieves the required proficiency, the university will be brought into being. This means that others can become associated with it as they graduate.

The Commission

IT is perhaps auspicious that these colleges, transferred here after the fall of the mainland, should have been given this encouragement during the World Refugee Year. Friends and associates in America would do well to consider how they can offer specialised assistance. Meanwhile those responsible for working out this solution deserve the community's congratulations and the Colony looks forward to an early announcement on the appointment of a commission. Anything that can be done to expedite its inquiries will undoubtedly be appreciated by students and colleges alike.

Man Died Of Nerve Illness

Melbourne, June 4. A married man died from a nerve illness induced by his association with his former secretary, a detective told the Coroners' Court here.

The detective told the court that at first thought the man had died of thyroid poisoning.

The coroner, Mr J. M. Dugan, found that the man had died of polyneuritis and inflammation of the nerves.

The dead man was Oswald Stuart Acason, who died in Royal Melbourne Hospital on September 21.

PREGNANT

Detective-Sergeant F.J. Adam said Acason became ill when he learned his secretary had become pregnant through him following an association.

Acason's wife and two children had gone to England and he did not expect them to return, but his secretary told him of her pregnancy about the same time as they returned, Sergeant Adam said.

It was then he complained of muscular weakness and severe chest and back pains.—China Mail Special.

Unjustified Attack On Magistrate

London, June 4. Mr John Watson, chairman of the Southeast London Juvenile Court said here today that the Bishop of Southwark, Dr Mervyn Stockwood, had made a "cruel and wholly unjustified attack" on the personal character of Mr Geoffrey Rose, the late Lambeth magistrate.

Mr Rose, who was 69, died on Tuesday, a few hours after Mrs Eftimia Christos, who he had sentenced, was released from prison on bail pending an appeal.

Mr. Wedgwood said the Opposition accepted the Bill with very great reluctance indeed and only because without some form of this kind, un-planned contraction would continue without compensation for displaced workers and grants for re-equipment.

Dr Stockwood said on Saturday that the sentence was "savage and inhuman" and that the magistrate who passed the sentence needed a course of instruction in the virtues of compassion and mercy.

Later, the Bishop of Southwark's secretary said there was no comment on Mr. Watson's statement.—China Mail Special.

Tanker Explosion

Durban, June 4. Four people were killed and three injured in an explosion which occurred in the 10,000-tonner Atlantic Clipper while it was undergoing repairs in Durban harbour today. Hours after the explosion, a small fire broke out in the tanker's pump room but was quickly extinguished.—AFP.

CHANCE TO REVERSE LANCS' FORTUNES

London, June 4. The House of Commons tonight approved the Government's £30 million five-year plan to modernise the British cotton industry. It gave an unopposed second reading — agreement in principle — to a bill to give effect to the plan which will eliminate superfluous mills and pave the way for a more compact, modernised industry.

Sir David Eccles, President of the Board of Trade, said the plan might be Lancashire's last chance to reverse the long decline in its fortunes.

Two-Thirds

The Government will pay two-thirds of the money needed to compensate firms who eliminate excess capacity under schemes approved by the Board of Trade.

The remaining third will be raised by levies on the industry.

The whole scheme is voluntary.

Sir David said that although over £200,000,000 had been spent on the industry since the war, it was not as well equipped as that of some of its Western rivals, nor was the modern machinery as fully utilised as it was in other countries.

But after modernisation, he saw no reason why ground lost to the United States and West Germany in world markets should not be made up.

It was quite possible that round the corner there were new opportunities. A free trade area in Western Europe, big or small, would give a wider market in which Lancashire should do well.

Quite Small

Sir David said that under the recent Anglo-Soviet trade agreement the first opportunity was about to arise for Britain to sell cotton textiles in the Soviet Union.

"To start with, no doubt, the quota will be quite small," he said.

"But who knows, if once given a taste for British fabrics how far that enormous market will expand?"

He thought the Soviet Government had "just come to the point where the demand for consumer goods is something that must be met."

The Soviet authorities had assured him that this was the first time in their history that they had been willing to grant any quota for the import of cotton textiles from Britain.

Mr Anthony Greenwood, for the Labour opposition, was despondent about the state of the industry.

"Today we are saying goodbye to the cotton industry as it was in the heyday of our commercial greatness," he said.

A Kite

Replying to the debate, Mr John Rodgers, Parliamentary Secretary to the Board of Trade, said the Bill was "a kite flown by the Government to test Lancashire's confidence in itself." The Government believed Lancashire would respond to the challenge.

Mr Rodgers said the Government would not insist on all miners necessarily being British. But obviously most of it would, which was essential was that it should be the best for the purpose.—Reuters.

Harry Oakes Case Goes To Commons

London, June 4. The unsolved murder case of multi-millionaire Sir Harry Oakes reached the House of Commons today.

Canadian-born Sir Harry was bludgeoned to death in his Bahamas' mansion in 1943. The case has never been solved, and an attempt was recently made to reopen it at the behest of Cyril Stevenson, Opposition leader Cyril Stevenson.

Conservative member of Parliament Mr. Montgomery Hyde tabled a question to be answered today by the Home Secretary, Mr. R.A. Butler, on the case.

He asked if British assistance has been requested by Bahamas on the case and what steps Mr. Butler proposes to take.

PLAYBOY'S WIFE

At the time of her father's death, she was 18 and the wife of playboy Freddie de Marigny.

De Marigny was charged with Sir Harry's murder but was acquitted after a month-long trial.

Sir Harry was found dead in bed on the morning of July 8, 1943, by his house guest, H.C. Christie. He had been struck on the head four times by a blunt instrument. An attempt had been made to set his body afire and feathers had been scattered, voodoo-fashion, on the corpse.—UPI.

East German Delegation To Visit Russia

An East German delegation headed by Communist leader Walter Ulbricht will visit the Soviet Union on Monday.

GEOLOGIST'S PAINTING SETS OFF WORD WAR

Canberra, June 4. A geologist who hung a print of nudes on the wall of his hotel bedroom said today he would defy the efforts of the hotel manager and other people to make him remove it.

The geologist, Dr H. T. P. Hyde, described the demand for the removal of the print, "The Court," by Norman Lindsay, as "frivolous and absurd."

The print depicts a group of nude women standing in front of a bearded man and five dwarfs. The original hangs in the National Gallery, Sydney.

The manager of the Action Hotel, Mr E. J. Parker, has written to Dr Hyde and told him to remove the print from his room, which because it was serviced, was semi-public.

Dr Hyde replied that the only service the room received was from a maid who looked after it.

The Canberra manager of Commonwealth Hostels Limited, Mr E. K. Hodges, who will later investigate the controversy, said many people had complained about the print.—China Mail Special.

"TARZAN" SEPARATED

Hollywood, June 4. Actress Vera Miles said last night that she and her husband, Gordon Scott, the current Tarzan of the screen, have agreed to separate.

"Maybe a trial separation will do us good," said Miss Miles.

Whether Ulbricht will be accompanied by 17 top East German leaders, including Premier Otto Grotewohl, East Berlin Mayor Friedrich Ebert, Ambassador to Russia Johannes Koenig, and Deputy Premiers Bruno Leuschner, Hans Loch and Paul Scholz. The trip will be made at the invitation of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev. He extended the invitation on his visit to East Germany in March.

The East German announcement described the trip as "a friendship visit."

BIG DECISION?

From JOHN EARLE

Geneva, June 4.

An important decision affecting the future of the East-West talks may come from next week's meetings in Moscow between the leaders of the Soviet Union and East Germany.

Though both East and West have during the three weeks old conference got down to serious business and edged towards each other in some respects, there was still no sign of a "break-through" towards real agreement.

In fact the latest private sessions of the East-West Foreign Ministers appeared to show that both sides are standing on their positions and not giving an inch.

Today's private meeting, though held in good atmosphere, was believed to have been taken up with unproductive discussion on a possible free city of West Berlin and Western access to it.

The feeling was apparent in conference circles that the conference had got as far as it could for the moment.

In view of Western Ministers' refusal to come out with any substantial concessions in the last few days, observers thought the Russians and East Germans faced the following choice of decisions:

Summit

Whether to try to draw up with the West the present areas of agreement and disagreement in a document to be submitted to the summit conference which, it is commonly assumed, will take place later this summer.

—UPI.

The Talks

• Whether to go on haggling away as at present in an effort to outline an acceptable Berlin settlement.

• Whether to make substantial concessions towards the Western point of view, which would make the holding of a summit conference certain and facilitate the heads of government task of reaching a settlement.

The contact between the Soviet and East German delegations here is close and the two Foreign Ministers, Mr Andrei Gromyko and Dr Lothar Boll, hold meetings almost daily.

A Communist source said next week's Moscow talk "would not take steps which would endanger the Geneva conference."

Observers took this to mean the Soviet and East German leaders were not preparing to increase tension or to make threats.

Nibbling

In their private talks here the East and West Foreign Ministers are reported to agree that West Berlin may be called a "free city."

They are both regarded as nibbling at ideas for East-West commissions to be set up in Berlin.

Their main points of disagreement, in the view of observers, are:

• The presence of Soviet forces. Mr Gromyko wants to introduce them into West Berlin under his proposal for "token" forces of the Big Four Powers.

• Mr Gromyko says the occupation status of the forces in West Berlin must be abolished. But the Western powers reject this and say the right of occupation is the legal basis on which their forces are in West Berlin and it can normally only be abolished in a peace treaty.

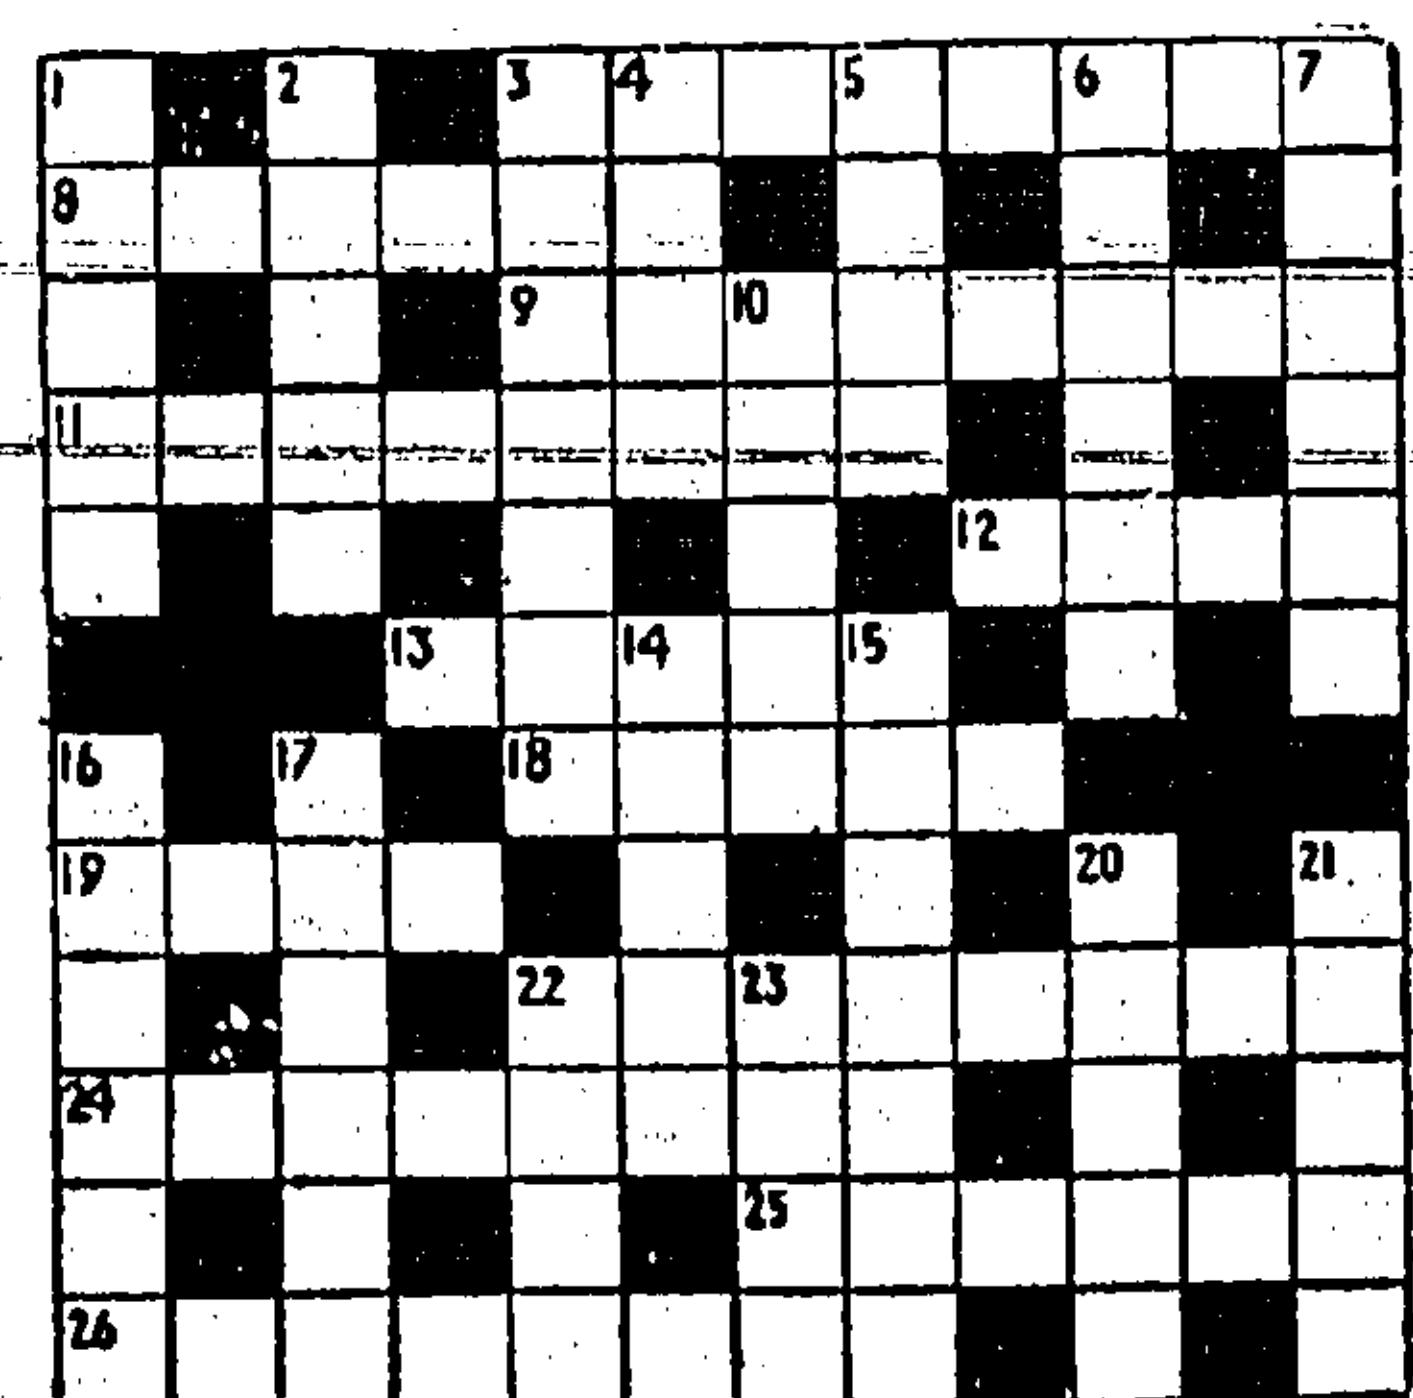

• The Western ministers appear not to be satisfied that military and civilian access to West Berlin would be guaranteed and have been reported as trying to pin down Mr Gromyko to detail acceptable guarantees.—Reuter.

Russian Sub Seen In Atlantic

Washington, June 4. A Russian submarine recently was sighted in the North Atlantic about 150 to 200 miles south of Iceland, the Navy said today.

It said the craft, which was on the surface at the time, was sighted by the submarine USS Grenadier and a Navy patrol plane, both of which were engaged in exercises.

The report placed the sub far from the United States and near what are considered normal Soviet maneuvering areas.

The Navy, which issued the statement in response to queries, was unable to say what kind of submarine was involved or whether it appeared to be a missile-firing type.

The Navy has said it believed the Russians may have started to equip some submarines with missiles of the pilotless aircraft type.—UPI.

Rioters Buried

GRANDFATHER ENDS NON-STOP 7,658-MILE FLIGHT

Los Angeles, June 4. Grandfather Max Conrad today set a non-stop record for single-engine planes when he brought his Piper Comanche down at International Airport 7,658 miles from his take-off point at Casablanca.

The 86-year-old professional ferry pilot landed at 2:47 p.m. He had officially broken the single-engine record when he passed El Paso, Texas.

"I feel fine," Conrad said as he climbed from his plane into the waiting arms of customs and immigration officers. "It's nice and cool here."

Conrad sat on the wing of his plane while officials checked the plane. He said he had plenty of gasoline left.

"For a while I was thinking of flying on to San Francisco," he said.

He did not appear overly tired but did show some signs of his long trip.—UPI.

"Tibet Society" Formed

London, June 4. Friends of Tibet and people who have had connections with India, China or Tibet today formed a "Tibet Society" with the object of giving "expression to the widespread interest and deep concern aroused in this country (Great Britain) by recent events in Tibet."

The preparatory meeting, held today under the chairmanship of the British author Mr F. N. Benson-Palmer, decided to call a public meeting on July 8 when the full objects of the society will be explained to the public and in all probability an appeal will be launched for funds to help the Tibetan refugees now in India.

The preparatory meeting decided to enlist support among members of Parliament, political parties, business circles and other organizations for the work of the society.

The main purposes of the society will be "not to allow what has happened in Tibet to be forgotten," to send financial and other assistance to Tibetan refugees and to render assistance to the Dalai Lama "in whatever ways possible."—AFP.

What is the TRUTH about Monty and Berlin?

NEED there ever have been a Berlin problem? Could anyone have averted that huge cold shadow which still hangs over the prospect of Summit talks, over the whole peace of the world?

Increasingly, one familiar clipped voice has been giving its own answer to these questions in recent months.

"Certainly the shadow could have been averted," the voice has implied. "Certainly the Berlin problem could have been solved at the very beginning. IF ONLY MY ADVICE HAD BEEN TAKEN."

The voice belongs, of course, to Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery.

The field marshal has suggested that if he had been given his way during the last stages of the war in Europe in 1945, he would have gone right forward to Berlin.

And then how different all might have been in the European scene, both at the time and ever since!

For just suppose that Monty had seized the capital of Germany and held it. There would have been no problem of supplying Free Berlin. No airlift crisis. No possibility of a Russian blockade.

But American researchers have recently been looking into the unpublished records of the time.

And the results of this meticulous research are remarkably different from the Montgomery version.

Talks began

The researchers have shown that the partition of Germany had been decided as early as the New Year 1944.

This had been done at a certain meeting held at Lancaster House, St James's, by a party of Allied political experts. They formed the European Advisory Commission (E.A.C.).

The British member of this body was Sir William Strang, the British Foreign Office, and the other members were ## London.

I AM back in Britain for the first time in 10 years. I remember the day I sailed down the Thames from Tilbury with my wife and two daughters—they were nine and five—bound for the other side of the world.

Was there anyone who later tried to get those decisions modified? There was—indeed. But the American researchers tell us that the man with the wisdom and the foresight was not General Montgomery. It was Winston Churchill.

Let me take up the story again at the time when war in Europe was drawing to a close.

General Eisenhower, Supreme Allied Commander, held his troops back in the West, awaiting the Russian advance, for both the British and the American armies were already well beyond occupational areas allotted to them.

Churchill's view about this was very definite. It was this:

"At any rate, don't withdraw a yard until we have sorted out our differences with the Russians!"

If Churchill had held on to this view it might have offered an opportunity which certainly has never occurred.

In a telegram to Roosevelt on April 1 he urged:

"I therefore consider that from a political standpoint we should move as far east as Germany as possible and that should Hitler be in our grasp we should certainly take it. This also applies sound on military grounds."

No answer came from Roosevelt. On April 12 he died.

Churchill tried to raise the question again with his successor, President Truman, but without avail.

The American troops were halted on the River Elbe, waiting for the Russians to reach Berlin. And the British troops advanced no further either. For this we can thank that E.A.C. agreement.

So did Winant, in effect: "If we put this (Roosevelt's plan) forward, it will offend the Russians—because the Russians and the British have already put their plan forward."

Gave way

On April 3, 1945, President Roosevelt gave way—and accepted the British-Russian plan.

And in September, at their meeting in Quebec, he and Winston Churchill argued out the terms.

On November 14, 1944, the three occupation zones of this Germany yet to be divided were fixed by a Tripartite Agreement. (There was still not a word about any corridor to Berlin from the West.)

And cunnelling continued about those North Sea harbours. In the end, Britain did get control of them, by conceding the rights of free ports to the Americans.

But the Americans did not agree. Eisenhower's political adviser reported that the general thought it unwise to retain forces in the Russian Zone. "Wer does it would be productive of advantages?"

What did Churchill then? The answer to this question which puts Field Marshal Montgomery's recent remarks into the sharpest perspective.

Better perhaps than anyone, better certainly than Montgomery, Churchill foresaw the difficulties over Berlin.

He knew the city's symbolic prestige in Germany.

He knew the importance of keeping it connected by a firmly marked corridor with the West.

Yet in the diplomatic circumstances—with the Americans wanting to withdraw; with the Russians triumphant but suspicious; and with the binding E.A.C. agreement long signed and settled—even Churchill decided to give way.

Does Field Marshal "Modest" Monty seriously fancy that he himself would or could have decided differently?

(London Express Service)

cases that put to shame the sordid fibres things that were there in 1949—and made the lightweight one that I bought in the years I lived in Sydney—that English BEER was weak and warm.

I yearn

My first pint of bitter came frothing out cellar-cool and with a heady yeastiness that I had forgotten. Top marks.

There are still things I want to do, of course. I want to go up to Bradford where I have eaten the best PORK PIES I have ever had, and find again the little shop where I used to buy them. (Can anyone give me a recipe for them to take back to my wife in Hongkong?)

I want to kick dead leaves along an autumn lane and smell an English ploughed field again. But I shall not be here long enough.

I want to eat my first bag of English FISH AND CHIPS.

I wait

But do I want to LIVE in Britain ever again? I've still got two or three weeks left. I shall need them to decide.

"Five years," my wife said, "when we settle away in 1949." We'll give ourselves five years and see how we feel.

I know how I feel. I still love Britain. I always shall. I'll let you know later if I feel like staying.

Hand of Cleopatra?

THE hand of a long-dead queen has just been insured. Preserved in a glass-topped mahogany box, but yellowed after nearly twenty centuries, this somewhat gruesome relic is claimed to be the hand of a woman who once knew the touch of such celebrities as Julius Caesar and Mark Antony—the hand of a Queen whose memory has bewitched historians and poets through the ages and who in her lifetime employed her peerless beauty and charm of personality to isolate great men and bend them to her will.

It is believed to be the only relic of the once-lovely body of the fabulous temptress Queen Cleopatra.

The hand, whether it really belonged to Cleopatra or not, has quite a history in its own right. It was presented in the year 1704 by the Egyptians to a Roman general. The Egyptians had discovered a tomb which they were convinced was that of the famed Queen Cleopatra, and it was from this tomb that the mummified hand, severed at the wrist, had been taken.

She withdrew to Syria and there schemed to restore herself as Queen of Egypt by force of arms. Then, when she was about 22 years of age, she made the acquaintance of the mighty but susceptible Julius Caesar.

Ambitious, resourceful, a woman of great intellectual power and wondrously beautiful besides, Cleopatra lost no time in exercising her charms on the formidable Roman. He became her lover, and her chief supporter in her aims. With his legions he defeated the Egyptians and reinstated Cleopatra, her brother Ptolemy having perished in the war that restored her to power.

On Caesar's advice she married a second brother to rule Egypt jointly with him—while another account maintains that Antony joined Cleopatra at Alexandria, but that the ruthlessly ambitious queen enticed him into a suicide pact, and then applied herself to the business of ingratiating herself with the Roman leader who had triumphed over the Egyptians at the battle of Actium.

Royal Minx

But for once Cleopatra's charms failed to achieve their desired effect, and to avoid the humiliation of being led as a captive through Rome at the wheel of the victor's chariot, she killed herself—some say by a poisoned comb, though tradition has it that she held an asp to her bosom. The date of her death is given as August 20, in the year 30 B.C.

War!

The outcome was war between Rome and the forces of Cleopatra and Antony. The two lovers were present at the great naval battle of Actium in 31 B.C., which ended in defeat for the Egyptians.

Cleopatra escaped to Alexandria, and there is more than one version of what transpired following her flight there.

One account states that Antony, after his defeat at Actium, heard Cleopatra had died, and stabbed himself because of his insupportable grief.

Postnote: A great tomb, which could have been the burial place of Cleopatra, was unearthed in 1794. Some historians believe that the Romans gave her a royal burial, with her lover Antony.

WOMANSENSE

YOUR BIRTHDAY ... By STELLA

FRIDAY, JUNE 5

BORN today, you have been given by the stars a commanding character and distinction. They will make your life one of action, counteraction; progress and regression; tremendous glamour and intermittent tragedy. In other words, you have a great talent and a tempestuous temperament. Whether you can develop the former and curb the latter is entirely up to you. You are, more than many, master of your own fate!

But no matter what else, your life will never be dull. You are a fine organizer yet you detect details. You are a good judge of character, yet you are easily influenced and even sometimes fooled because of misplaced affections. There is a wide streak of common sense in your nature, yet you have a horror of the insect world and are incurably intrigued by the bizarre.

SATURDAY, JUNE 6

GEMINI (May 22-June 21)—Today's new moon places emphasis on personal affairs. Many of the things of which you have been dreaming come true now.

CANCER (June 22-July 22)—Concentrate on cultural matters for the next month. You can advance your position accordingly.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 23)—Hold to your purpose and let nothing deter you from reaching your goal. Hard work does it!

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23)—This can be a good time to deal with the public and achieve some major objective that way.

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23)—A good weekend for relaxation and enjoyment of your friends. There's no special hurry today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 21-Nov. 22)—The two major trends of your life will be affected by what transpires in the next four weeks.

JACOBY on BRIDGE

HERE is another hand from my indefatigable correspondent Milton Unger of New York.

As usual we find Milton in there bidding his cards to the hill and a little further but with reasonably good results:

The play of the hand at six diamonds doubled was short and sweet. West took his ace and king of clubs and South took the rest of the tricks. Down one with 150 honours; a mighty scalp save against the sure five spades contract.

Milton points out that West could have bought the hand if he had opened with five spades and I agree but also have no criticism for West's opening two bid and nothing but admiration for Milton's gallant action agains it.

However, I do feel that West might well have bid a trifle differently after Milton's three-plate bid and South's four diamonds. It should have been apparent to West by that time that he was playing alone and he should merely have bid four spades; not five.

Miller would have bid five diamonds and East would have doubled. Then, when West went twelve-spade-wonder! Mr. Milton would have taken the six bid and nothing but admiration for Milton's gallant action agains it.

TODAY'S QUESTION: West bids two spades and your partner rebids two clubs. East passes. What do you do now?

STORIES FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

Merlin's Brand-New Game

—The Shadows Couldn't Play It Without Him—

By MAX TRELL

"I WISH," said Knarf, the Shadow Boy with the Turned-Around Name, to his sister Handi, "that we had a 'Catch-Me-If-You-Can' kind of game to play."

"Yes," agreed Handi, "that's what I wish too. Look at how hard it's raining. We can't play any of our old games like tag or hide-and-seek."

"I'd like a brand-new game," said Knarf.

Big Smile

Just then, there was a noise from behind the bookcase. Out walked Mr Merlin, the Magnificent Magician. He had a big smile on his face.

"Good morning, my dears," he said. "How would you like to play a new game?"

"Oh, Mr Merlin!" cried Handi, as she threw her arms around the Magician's neck and gave him a hug. "That's what we were talking about!"

"What kind of a game is it?" asked Knarf.

Easy Game

"Well," began Mr Merlin, "it's really quite simple. Everybody who plays this game is allowed to change himself into any kind of an animal he wants to be. Whoever is smallest tries to run away. The others try to catch him. Here! Try to catch me!"

As he said this, Mr Merlin changed into a mouse. He scurried across the floor.

The next second, Knarf and Handi changed into two cats. They started chasing after the mouse. Just as they were about to pounce on the mouse at the other end of the room, the mouse changed into a dog.

The two cats turned and raced away as the dog bounded after them, barking at the top of his voice.

Raced Away

"Let's play it again, even though Mr Merlin isn't here."

Couldn't Catch Him

The two cats turned and raced away as the dog bounded after them, barking at the top of his voice.

"Oh, what a wonderful game!" Handi said to Knarf.

Just as the dog was about to leap on the cat, the two cats changed into two kangaroos. They whirled around and chased the dog. The dog ran with all his might as the kangaroos bounded after him.

Then the dog changed into a lion and chased the kangaroos.

Then the kangaroos changed into elephants and chased the lion.

"Now we've got him," thought Knarf and Handi, as they crowded the frightened lion into the farthest corner of the room. "There isn't any place he can go!"

But Mr Merlin, the Magnificent Magician, foiled them. He changed himself into a fox, they both remained exactly what they were: a small girl and a smaller boy.

The two "elephants" jumped and pushed and jostled and bumped against each other and fell down in a heap, but they couldn't get the tiny fluttering butterfly.

And from a far-off corner of the ceiling of the room, they heard a little voice. "I'm back." They knew it was Mr Merlin, but they couldn't even see him.

"I'll play the game with you tomorrow!" Handi said to Knarf, scolding,

The Cat got ready to pounce on the Mouse.

"Let's play it again, even though Mr Merlin isn't here."

But alas, though Handi tried with might and main to change herself into a chicken and Knarf tried as hard as he could to change himself into a fox, they both remained exactly what they were: a small girl and a smaller boy.

And from a far-off corner of the ceiling of the room, they heard a little voice. "I'm back." They knew it was Mr Merlin, but they couldn't even see him.

"I'll play the game with you tomorrow!" Handi said to Knarf, scolding,

"After" Make-Up Magic A Woman Looks Prettier

Terry Cosmetique
Have LIGHT LASHES? Use mascara to darken them. Eyes look prettier "after" an application than they did "before."

ARE those before and after pictures you see in beauty ads for real?" queries a reader. "Is it possible that the glamour girl of the 'after' photograph could have looked so awful in the 'before' picture?"

That's a good question.

Sometimes "before" pictures are exaggerated to make a point. More often than not, however, they're "for real."

MAGIC IN MINUTES

I've watched famous beauticians, whose clients include some of Broadway's and Hollywood's brightest stars, apply "after" makeup in a matter of minutes. There was nothing up his sleeve, but his skilled hands held make-up—and he knew how to use it.

One minute you were looking at a plain Jane, a girl without beauty or sparkle or interest. The next moment she was radiantly transformed by make-up.

Did she use cosmetics "before"? Of course; what woman doesn't? She just didn't know how to apply them to play up her good features, tone down her bad ones.

EYE MAKE-UP

Eye make-up is responsible for some of those most dramatic "after" changes. No woman can be truly beautiful unless her eyes are lovely, and to be lovely they need emphasis.

Thin brows—whether naturally that way or tweezed into a pencil line—appear affected. They need filling out with feathery pencil strokes to balance the shape and size of both eyes and face. A pencil is valuable, too, for extending brows that are too short.

THE RIGHT COIFFURE

Perhaps the one thing that improves appearances most drastically is the right coiffure. The wrong hairdo can make a full face appear fatter, a thin face look gaunt. It can focus attention on a prominent nose, a square-cut jaw, a high forehead.

If you've let hair outrun its styling during the summer, you don't have to ask whether "before" and "after" pictures are "for real." When you have hair cut, the "after" results will answer that question for you.

By JEANNE D'ARCY

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Don't try to use a deep chair or table in a narrow part of a room or hallway. Shallow tables, chairs and benches will leave the area looking much larger, save tripping.

Always try to see a prospective carpet purchase in your own home before you buy it. That's the only way you can be sure it will complement your other furnishings.

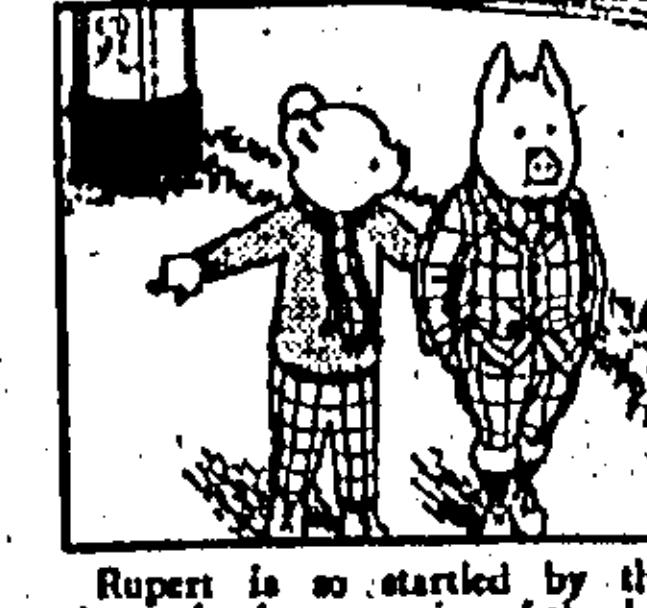

Reheating leftover Brussels sprouts is no problem when you cook with soup. Heat 1 cup cream of chicken soup thinned with ½ cup milk. Toss with 8 cups cooked Brussels sprouts and ½ cup grated American or cheddar cheese. Turn into lightly greased 1-quart casserole. Top with 1 cup buttered bread cubes and bake 20 minutes or until crumbly brown in preheated 375-degree oven.

To clean felt baby shoes, move cardboard inner soles and laces, and wash shoes gently in lukewarm soap or detergent. Squeeze ribbon ties through clean suds. Rinse and blot dry with a towel. Stretch booties gently into shape and insert inner soles. When dry, brush felt to restore fluffiness.

Store garden tools by sticking them in a tray or box of sand mixed with a small amount of crank case oil. The mixture cleans the tools and keeps them rust free.

Use pipe cleaners to close plastic freezer bags. The cleaners will not break in freezing temperatures.

Tommy Greenhough Is England's New Test Spinner

By ALEX BANNISTER

Tommy Greenhough, of Lancashire, this week became the first leg-spinner to be picked for an England cricket team since Doug Wright. Greenhough, whose final action immediately reminds one of Wright, is one of three new comers in the side now playing against India in the first Test at Nottingham.

The other two were expected choices. They are Ken Taylor, Yorkshire's opening batsman and Huddersfield footballer, who will be Milton's new partner, and Martin Horton, the Worcestershire batsman and off-break bowler.

Until this season of dry and covered pitches Greenhough was uncertain of his place in Lancashire's attack.

He began the season with 100 first-class wickets in a career which started in 1951, including only 24 last year. Now the door of fame is wide open to him.

Prediction

I remember watching him when he was 16, bowling to the 1948 Australians in the Old Trafford when Arthur Morris told me he thought one day Tommy would play for England. It has taken 11 years for Arthur's prediction to come true.

Greenhough's progress was seriously retarded by an accident at a printing works in which he broke both ankles. Now he is reaching the age at which leg-spinners come into their own.

Ken Taylor also has a golden chance, for runs against India means a trip to the Caribbean.

Taylor puts cricket first and he has yet to re-sign for Huddersfield. The tour is worth not less than £450, with £50 bonus, and I understand the MCC are contemplating re-stretching the activities of players chosen for that tour.

TOMMY GREENHOUGH

between the season's end and the embarkation date in December.

Horton learned his cricket in the backyard of his father's public-house at Worcester. "He cost me a fortune in broken windows," his father, an ex-Midlands boxing champion, once told me.

Prevents Batting Collapse At 60 For Three With A Century Knock

Nottingham, June 4.
Led by a sparkling century by their captain Peter May, England recovered from an early collapse to score 358 for six wickets on the opening day of the first Test against India here today.

England who won the toss and batted first on a fast true pitch crashed to a shock 60 for three—and faced complete humiliation against a team rated here as no more than moderate opposition for England's top cricketers.

But May swung the game with a brilliantly-hit 100—his first century against the Indians.

Ken Barrington, May's Surrey team-mate, made 58 and joined his captain in a free-swinging fourth-wicket stand of 125.

Then Godfrey Evans with a boy 73 in 75 minutes and Martin Horton with a solid 58 not out completed the recovery.

Horlon, another Test newcomer, played an innings of immense value. Content to play second fiddle to the galloping Evans he showed immaculate defence and, after Evans' departure, closed attack. His 50 came in just over two hours and included five fours.—Reuter.

Heartening

But India's display was heartening after their unimpressive showings against the Countries. Keen determined bowling backed up by improving fielding took them to the point of a complete breakthrough—and only the world-class batting of May turned the tide.

Surendra Nath helped a little by an atmosphere which encouraged some swing struck the first surprise blows. He sent back Arthur Milton and then captured the valuable wicket of Colin Cowdrey.

Leg-spinner Gupte followed up by trapping opener Ken Surrey out of England's three new caps.

This was the extent of the Indians' success march. May and Barrington, cautious at first,

Best Bowling

At the close, Worcestershire led by only 62 runs with four wickets left. So tomorrow

Surrey should register their second win in six champion ship games played so far.

Best bowling performance of the day was made by Don Shepherd of Glamorgan who took six Sussex second-innings wickets for 71.

Warwickshire captain Mike Smith, a rugby international, pulled Kent underpinner Colin Page for two sixes in three balls while hitting an enthralling 52 at Tunbridge Wells.

Closing Scores

Close of play scores in today's cricket matches were:

At the Oval: Worcestershire—99 and secondly 198 for six (D. Kenyon 74, G. Dews 42 not out). Surrey—235 (T. Clarke 64).

At Tunbridge Wells: Kent—363 for nine declared and secondly 140 for one (A. Phelps 67, R. Wilson 67 not out). Warwickshire—215 (M. Smith 52, T. Cartwright 53, K. Ibadulla 41 not out).

At Oxford: Essex—200 and secondly 274 for nine declared (G. Barker 45, J. Milner 50). Oxford University—210 (A. Duff 53, C. Clarke five for 50) and secondly 60 for one.

At Cambridge: Middlesex—257 for five declared and secondly 229 for three declared (A. Walton 74, E. Clarke 100 not out). Cambridge University—180 (H. Willard 52) and secondly 25 for none.

At Southampton: Somerset—202 for nine declared and secondly 60 for two. Hampshire—381 for seven declared and secondly 100 for no wicket. Lancashire—359 (M. Hallam 93, Van Galoven 97, W. Watson 98 not out).

At Newport: Sussex—160 and secondly 189 (D. Smith 60 not out, D. Shepherd six for 71). Glamorgan—132 and secondly 118 for four.

At Coalville: Nottinghamshire—387 for seven declared and secondly 100 for no wicket. Leicestershire—359 (M. Hallam 93, Van Galoven 97, W. Watson 98 not out).

At Middleborough: Yorkshire—160. Lancashire by an innings and 17 runs in a friendly match. Yorkshire—348. Lancashire—160 (K. Grilevs 41, C. Clayton 43, J. Birkenshaw five for 39) and secondly 161 (K. Grilevs 92)—Reuter.

but later brilliantly aggressive, stayed together for almost two and a half hours—and when Barrington fell just before tea the real danger was past.

Grand slam Knock

Barrington's 50 included two sixes from tremendous straight drives off successive balls from Bardsley and six fours.

He then increased his tempo, going back for three, and three quarter hours and hit 18 fours. His century was his 13th in Tests and the 78th of his career.

May's exit was the signal for the day's brightest batting—a grand slam knopped by Godfrey Evans who at 38—the oldest player in the side—was playing in his 50th Test.

His arrival coincided with the taking of the new ball, but it made no difference to gay Godfrey. Slammering at almost everything and snatching the most impish of singles, he raced to 50 in 45 minutes. When he left, after scoring 73 of the 100 runs produced by his stand with Horton, he had hit 12 flashing fours and England were in an unassassable position.

With the absence of La Coquenne there is no French-trained candidate for the race which is worth more than £21,000 to the winner.

Apart from the three aforementioned horses, there is another dozen or so expected to go to the post. None of these looks to have any very great chance.

FATAL 17TH COST ARMOUR 23 SHOTS

By JOHN INGHAM

WHEN an unknown official corrected a score-card he unwittingly gave a world record to the great Tommy Armour. It was a record no one wanted—23 shots for a single hole in a professional championship.

Scotman Armour had just won the 1927 U.S. Open at Oakmont and was playing in the big Shawnee tournament Sunday.

It became so serious that at the 17th hole he began knocking the ball after ball over a boundary fence and into the Shawnee Indian territory.

CONFUSED

Confused, hot and very bothered, Armour had to pencil in for the hole. Unhappily, there was a doubt about the take-off and on reaching the tee he thought his score for the hole should read 22 and not 21.

After totting up, the official marker agreed and corrected the score which became a record which stands today.

MIKE HAWTHORN'S FRIEND FINDS A NEW ESCORT

By PAUL TANFIELD
Jean Howarth, the lovely model Mike Hawthorn planned to marry, has found a new companion in the exciting world of motor-racing.

Last week she and wealthy 23-year-old Count Stephen Ovaroff—an Australian driver whose title comes from Russian predecessors—flew together to Zaandvoort, in Holland, to watch the Dutch Grand Prix.

Before they left Count told me: "Jean and I have been fond of each other since Mike died."

"I knew her before it happened, but not very closely. In those days, then came Mike's death and all his friends rallied round to cheer her up."

WONDERFUL GIRL

"That was about three months ago, of course, and somehow I seemed to become closer to her than to the others."

The huge, 6 ft., 6 in., 17-stone) Australian looked up from the engine of a Lotus which he was tuning and went on: "Jean's a wonderful girl."

"We spend most of our time together, doing the rounds, going to the parties. And I've taken her to the Astor, the Steering Wheel... you know, all the clubs."

He wiped his hands on a greasy rag and grinned. "As a matter of fact," he said, "we were out together last night. I didn't get home till 4 a.m."

GREAT TO BE WITH

"Now I'm really looking forward to taking her over to Holland. I'll be back about midnight. But she's great to be with."

"And, she's terribly keen on racing. She'll be watching me next month when I drive at Goodwood."

The Count, whose father, Count Igor Ovaroff, was one of Australia's most famous race drivers and died in a crash before the war has done two seasons racing in Britain.

"Pretty soon," he said, "I shall be joining Wilment's as a staff driver. But that won't stop me seeing Jean."

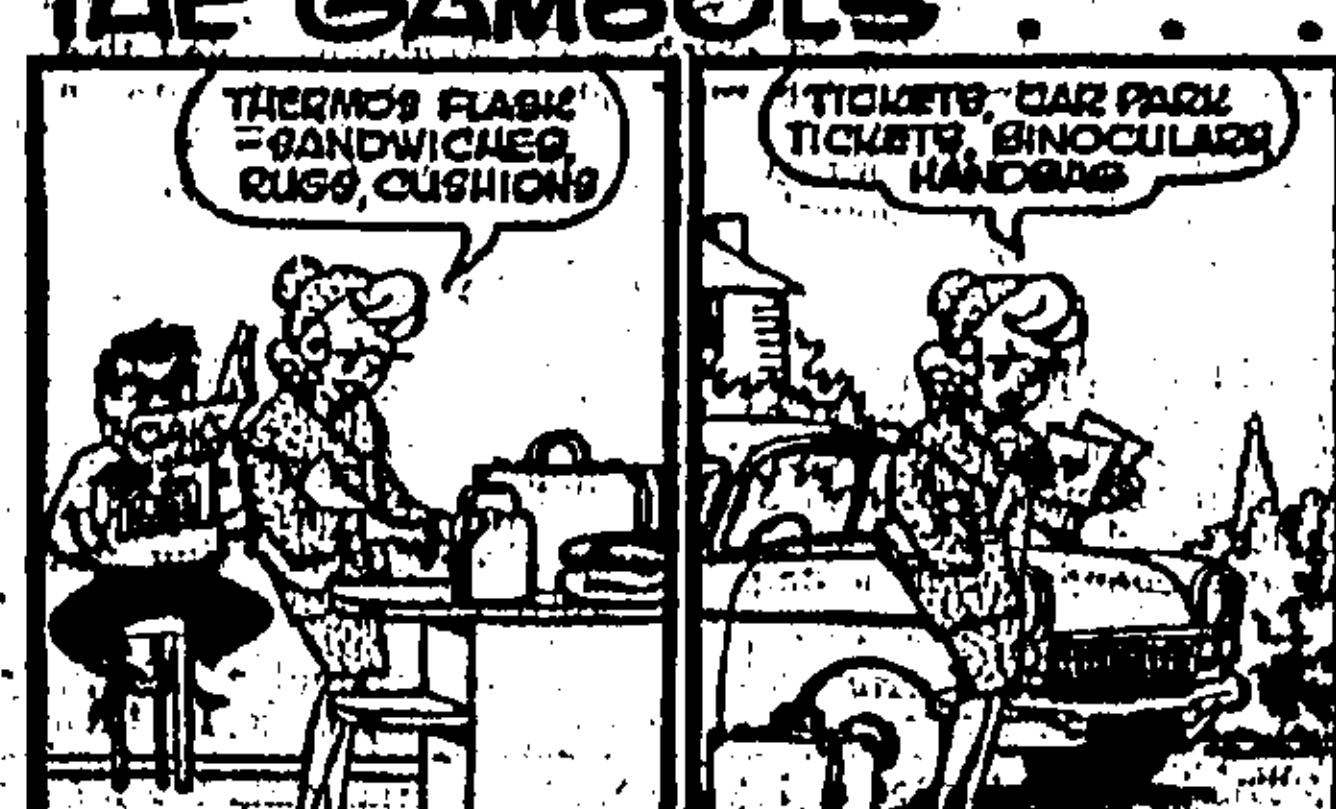

He bent over the engine of the Lotus again and his friend Cliff Davis said: "You know, I've got a bet on with a friend—ten to one in fives—that Steve won't marry for another two years."

Was I mistaken, or did I detect a wink behind the dark glasses he was wearing?

Setback For League-Leading Braves

CEPEDA DRIVES IN SEVEN RUNS TO PACE GIANTS TO 11-5 VICTORY

New York, June 4.

Orlando Cepeda, the National League's rookie of the year in 1958, drove in seven runs today as the San Francisco Giants beat the Milwaukee Braves 11-5 and cut the losers' first-place lead to  $\frac{1}{2}$  games.

Cepeda drove in five of the runs with a pair of homers and also hit a double and a single to pace the Giants' 15-hit attack on eight-game winner Lew Burdette and two successors. It was the first time the Giants beat Burdette since 1954.

Cepeda homered to cut an early Milwaukee lead to 5-3 in the fourth, hit a three-run homer in the fifth and smacked a base-clearing double in the eighth. Cepeda's second homer cleared the left field bleachers—the first such drive since the Braves moved to Milwaukee in 1953.

Jim Davenport had three hits and Willie Mays, Daryl Spencer and Hobie Landrith two each for the Giants, who split the four-game series with the National League Champs.

Cards Routed

Bill Virdon's two-run homer and Bill Mazeroski's two-run triple paced the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 9-3 rout of the St. Louis Cardinals in the other National League afternoon game. Ron Kline yielded 13 hits but won his fifth game. It was the Pirates' 12th victory in 15 games.

Chicago was at Philadelphia and Los Angeles at Cincinnati in night games.

Win For Yankees

In the American League Hector Lopez, acquired from Kansas City in a recent deal, knocked in four runs with a home run and a double to lead the New York Yankees to a 6-3 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

The win, the world champion's seventh in their last 10 games, put the Yankees within one percentage of the sixth-place Tigers.

Whitey Ford struck out six, walked four and yielded seven hits in registering his sixth triumph against three losses.

Ford also drove in three runs with a homer and a two-run double. Two of the Yankees' 15 hits were extra bases.

Salem surprise headmaster Prince resigns

AT A TIME OF SPREADING INFLUENCE FOR THE CULT...

PRINCE Georg Wilhelm of Hanover, brother-in-law to Prince Philip, has resigned his post as headmaster of Salem, Germany's controversial spartan public school. Prince Georg is now on a visit to England, staying at Buckingham Palace.

Though he has made no announcement of his resignation, I gather he decided to leave Salem before he arrived in England two weeks ago.

And ironically enough, as the ladies of the streets, in fact,

Said Lady Lewisham (taking herself very seriously): "It is a disgrace to London. We see it often.

Her ladyship, in this instance, was on a slightly ticky tour, since she was talking to the Mayfair prostitutes from the streets of Mayfair and set up red light houses," she said. That would be one solution."

Speaking from his study at Salem School, new headmaster Baron Axel von dem Busche, 40, said: "The prince, who is an old friend of mine, is preparing for a world-wide trip to schools similar to Salem, including Gordonstoun in Scotland."

"It's high time London removed the prostitutes from the streets of Mayfair and set up red light houses," she said. That would be one solution."

Delving further into the problem, Lady Lewisham explained that only recently, her mother, following its steps of that other social pioneer, Dr Edith Summerskill, had been east having a first hand look at the more notorious streets.

"In Bombay, they have their red light districts and the men who visit those districts know what they are seeking."

But it seems strange that such a young man, so well placed and successful, should resign when he is still displaying such keen interest in the Kurt Hahn educational experiment.

I couldn't help thinking of the way in which this Hahn carpet in Buckingham Palace. It was the Shah's present to the Queen, given to her on the day before his state visit to Britain ended.

The carpet, which measures 8ft by 12ft, is a decided cut

Who is to direct the organisation of these schools? Who is to be the world-wide master? My tip for you all: Prince Georg Wilhelm of Hanover, ex-headmaster of Salem.

U.S. answer to Annigoni?

NEW face appeared in the Princess Margaret Set one day recently at the Pied Piper Ball.

I recognise him as the American artist Reba Bouche, a dapper little man who is rapidly earning the title of America's answer to Annigoni, though I don't know whether or not he approves of the tag.

Mr. Bouche, a naturalised American born in Czechoslovakia of French and Hungarian parentage, is in London to paint the famous and the famous of those whose names appear in Debrett.

But at the ball he was "off parade." He was included in the party of 12 that attended the Pied Piper Ball at Hyde Park Hotel—the party held annually to aid the funds of the N.R.C.C., of which Princess Margaret is president.

But last week, Miss Montagu was back in residence at her old flat in Walton Place Kensington. Unobtrusively—as she does everything these days—she has spent the last 10 days once more very much a part of what was once called the Margaret Set.

So that we began to ask: "Is Judy's Roman holiday at an end?"

Not so. Judy is here to see her bankers. She has so fallen in love with the Tiber that she has decided to buy the lease of her flat from Miss Hilda, the wealthy Australian girl artist who first put the place on its feet.

He said: "Attending three regimental dinners a week, a lunch, travelling back and forth between London and Dorset and trying to get down to writing my memoirs."

"I have been trying to write a book, giving details about my life. But it is just impossible, IMPOSSIBLE. You see, I have so many interests and so many invitations. Last night I was at a regimental dinner, lunch time today was at another regiment, and tonight I'm addressing the Somerset Light Infantry dinner as its colonel."

Speaker at the corner

FRANCIS DASHWOOD, son of Britain's premier butonist Sir John Dashwood, has just spent 12 days addressing Russian street-corner crowds.

Russian-speaking Dashwood was representing a machine tool firm. But he explained: "You can't stand for very long on any Moscow street corner without a crowd gathering and asking questions."

"I always told them something about myself. I explained I believed in private enterprise, that I owned an estate in Buckinghamshire, and ran a factory. It always seemed to please them that I worked for a living myself."

"But I never told them my father was a baronet. I don't think they would have understood about THAT."

DAVID CHARLES

THE Duke of Rutland spent most of Whitson in a small room in the maternity ward of Westminster Hospital.

His wife Francis, the 21-year-old Duchess of Rutland, will be leaving shortly to return to the family estate at Belvoir Castle.

Today I can reveal that the week-old Marquis of Granby: David Charles Robert. The duke has broken with family tradition by not calling the baby John.

"I'm miserable," he groaned. "I'm moving house and I can't think of any of my prize roses with me. If I uprooted them it would ruin them for life."

Murder Trial In Closing Stages

Prosecuting and defending counsel in the Supreme Court today began their final addresses in a case in which a man is alleged to have stabbed a woman to death with a screwdriver.

Drug Possession

AIRLINE EMPLOYEES CHARGED

Maithri Atising, 26, a Thai national and airline employee, charged with dealing in dangerous drugs and possession of 13.5 ounces of morphine, told Judge H. H. B. How in Kowloon District Court this morning he did not know the nature and composition of the "white blocks" found by a fellow-countryman.

Atising is jointly charged with Turyayon Supasarn, 29, also that employed by an airline, and Cheng Yee, 29, a book-stall assistant.

Atising said he had not been told of the finding of the white blocks by Supasarn. He had learned of it, he said, when Supasarn was relating the incident to Cheng, and asking Cheng to sell them for him.

TO BOOKSTALL

He then added, he did not know the nature or composition of the white blocks. Continuing, he said that on March 31, the day of their arrest, he went to the book stall to see Cheng at Supasarn's request.

When they met, Cheng suggested they go to a coffee shop. Arriving there, he was introduced, he said, to two women. One was the unidentified police witness, Mrs. X, and the other the woman police sergeant in plain clothes.

After a short discussion Cheng Yee said they should engage a room at the Carnarvon Hotel, so they all went there. A short while later, he left the hotel room and returned with Supasarn.

The case is continuing.

Hon. ADC

Fl. Lt. D. A. Stevenson, RAF, has been appointed an Honorary ADC, the Government Gazette notified today.

The man, Ng Yin, 40, unemployed, has pleaded not guilty to murdering Yau Man-wai, in Poo Mei New Village, Kowloon, on November 24 last year.

The prosecution alleges he stabbed the woman 60 times.

Not Sufficient

Mr. D. Rea, Crown Counsel, told the jury today that he could rule out provocation as a defense.

"If someone is so provoked that they lose their reason and attack someone, the crime of murder may be reduced to manslaughter," he said.

"But words alone are not sufficient provocation."

Mr. Rea said another point the defense had raised was that Ng was unconscious.

"For confusion to amount to a defense, the accused has to be insane," Mr. Rea said.

"There is no suggestion that Ng is insane."

He said that there was no obligation on the Crown to prove a motive for murder.

Your Duty

He told the jury: "Your prime duty is to return a verdict of guilty of murder against Ng."

Mr. Oswald Cheung, for Ng, then began his closing address.

Mr. Cheung is instructed by Mr. William Wong, of M. K. Lam & Co.

Mr. D. G. Willis is assisting Mr. Rea.

Ordinances

The Government Gazette notified today that His Excellency the Governor had given his assent to the Taihwing Ordinance passed by the Legislative Council on Wednesday:

"An Ordinance to amend the Police Force Ordinance, Chapter 232;" "An Ordinance to amend the Fire Brigades Ordinance, 1954;" "An Ordinance to amend the Dutiable Commodities Ordinance, Chapter 100;" and "An Ordinance to make provision for restricting pollution of the air and for matters connected therewith."

Registrar

The Government Gazette notified today that Mr. Lee Chung-yiu had been appointed Registrar of Births and Deaths.

Urban Council

The Government Gazette notified today that Mr. Lee Pui-sak had been appointed an Assistant Secretary to the Urban Council.

Headmaster's Brother To Be Magistrate

Mr. James Dargan, a newly appointed magistrate, arrived here by boat from London today to take up his appointment.

He is seen above with his brother Father H. Dargan, principal of Wah Yan College, who met him at the airport.

Also at the airport to meet the new magistrate was Mr. P. F. X. Leonard, Kowloon magistrate.

Mr. Dargan will be attached to the Central Magistracy.

During the first part of the recital, where she sang Italian and a Handelian aria and German lieder, Miss Tjoa used a more sustained tone level, while her mannerism became more pronounced during the second part which was devoted to Indonesian, Chinese and Dutch folksongs, some Negro spirituals, and two modern Indonesian art songs.

As a matter of fact, during the second part Miss Tjoa showed definite signs of strain and though she tried hard to sing her parting encore, an Indonesian farewell song, with a greater volume of tone, she could not regain the power she had shown with "Carissima's 'Vittoria'" with which she had so promisingly started her evening.

One outstanding characteristic of the singer, however, should not pass unnoticed. That is her clear enunciation and her linguistic gifts, her pronunciation of the Italian and German words was remarkably good, and I believe that goes far for the Dutch and Chinese texts.

Her interpretations were always tasteful and correct in respect to style. Those groups on her programme where lyric sentiments were expressed, were conveyed by her with telling charm and especially the confidential sweetness of "Vergleichliches Ständchen" by Brahms suited the personality of the singer.

Miss Tjoa was accompanied at the piano by her younger sister Jenny Tjoa. She adjusted herself to every whim and intention of the singer with great sympathy. Indeed the sympathy was not only the natural one between sisters, but one of two congenial artists, a feature which contributed much to the happy result of the evening.

The recital was sponsored by the Music Society.

The price of dog meat on the unofficial market has risen from $5 a catty to $9 a catty. As the beginning of summer (by the Chinese calendar) approaches, dogs are being hidden and fattened in preparation for Har Tse, the Chinese festival of the beginning of summer.

The sale and consumption of dog meat is illegal but the practice is still carried on and the Chinese have a traditional superstition that keeping a black dog in the house, or to kill it for its blood, will keep the dolls away.

The 17th day of the fifth moon, June 22 this year, is the Har Tse festival.

It is a known fact that dog meat is eaten by the Southern Chinese between late autumn and late spring, but each year on the 17th day of the fifth moon dog meat is eaten as a special dish.

Not Northerners

The Northern Chinese do not eat dog meat, but Southern Chinese, mainly the Cantonese, claim the meat is tender, delicious and nourishing, and that it keeps the body warm. Black-haired, Chinese-bred Chow puppies fetch a good price, the best meat-tasting, the highest price.

In conversation, to avoid the use of the word dog, it is referred to as "Heung Yook" or "Fragrant Meat." It is also known as "sam lok," which stands for the Chinese numerals of three and six, which when added together become nine. The Chinese phonetic for nine is "Gao," which also means dog in Chinese.

Kept Hidden

As the festival approaches, the dogs are fattened in preparation for the big meal. They are also kept hidden, as the practice is illegal.

Six years ago dogs belonging to a number of prominent residents were found hidden in nullahs and drains near Aberdeen and Kowloon City, a district well-known for this practice.

The Hongkong Office of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals loudly protested against the practice for many years before it was declared illegal.

Their main claim against the practice at that time was the method of killing the dog. First it was stretched out and strangled. Then its throat was slit, the operculum being followed by clubbing.

Bought Two

Mr. H. M. Howell, Secretary of the HKSPCA said this morning that he had gone to a dog shop in town and bought two puppies which were being fattened for $10 each.

The Gazette also notified that Ngau Fan Ty, Loo Foo Fat and Pak Kok Tsui had been declared as areas within which live pearl oysters may be cultivated.

$15 FINE

Mrs. B. Corrie Hill, of No. 10 Hillcrest, The Peak, who pleaded guilty to causing obstruction was fined $15 by Mr. Q. C. Lin at Central Juvenile Court this morning for an order for a 10-year-old Eurasian boy to be placed under their care and protection.

On March 24, defendant parked her car outside No. 72-A Queen's Road Central and left it unattended from 4 p.m. to 4.40 p.m.

This caused obstruction, said Sub-Inspector S. W. Ng, who prosecuted.

The Police applied to Mr. I. Morris at Central Juvenile Court this morning for an order for a 10-year-old Eurasian boy to be placed under their care and protection.

The application stated that the boy whose guardian was unable to exercise care and guardianship, was falling into bad associations and beyond control.

As the boy was not present in Court this morning, Mr. Morris adjourned the case until Monday.

Pearl Culture Inspectors

The Government Gazette

notified today that Messrs. W. D. Orchard, Y.S. Yip and K. F. Fung had been appointed Fisheries Inspectors in connection with pearl culture control.

The Gazette also notified that

Ngu Fan Ty, Loo Foo Fat and

Pak Kok Tsui had been declared

as areas within which live pearl oysters may be cultivated.

Effie Tjoa A Beautiful Singer

By ERNST GOTTSCHALK

A LARGE audience gave

An Indonesian soprano Effie Tjoa last night at the King's Theatre a very friendly reception.

Deservedly, for

Miss Tjoa is a singer whose personal beauty and charm

endears her to her public, and whose voice has an exquisite bloom, sensual and feminine.

Miss Tjoa's voice is not a large one, but her top notes ring out bright and clear, and the middle and lower ranges acquire occasionally an appealing mezzo-soprano-like timbre.

Her voice is well-placed and one would say that she has an excellent technique, were it not for a habit to let the voice suddenly and ever so often drop to a mere whisper. It was not quite clear if Miss Tjoa uses this device — actually a man-nerism — for interpretative reasons or if she uses it in order to save strength.

If she has acquired the man-nerism because of interpretative reasons, she should rid herself of it quickly, because she has enough personality and charm that she could easily do without it.

During the first part of the recital, where she sang Italian and a Handelian aria and German lieder, Miss Tjoa used a more sustained tone level, while her mannerism became more pronounced during the second part which was devoted to

Indonesian, Chinese and Dutch folk-songs, some Negro spirituals, and two modern Indonesian art songs.

As a matter of fact, during the second part Miss Tjoa showed definite signs of strain and though she tried hard to sing her parting encore, an

Indonesian farewell song, with a greater volume of tone, she could not regain the power she had shown with "Carissima's

"Vittoria" with which she had so promisingly started her evening.
